

MIDNIGHT SEARCH IN NEW JERSEY MURDER

Trying Place of 'Woman in Green Velvet' Who Lured Paul Is Sought

'NO DEVELOPMENTS' FOLLOW

Detectives from Camden and Burlington counties made a midnight search last night in an effort to locate the trying place where the "woman in green velvet" is believed to have lured David S. Paul, murdered Camden bank messenger.

Headed by Prosecutor Charles A. Wolcott, of Camden county, and Prosecutor Kelsey, of Burlington county, the detectives covered a wooded area of forty miles between Tabernacle and Barnegat.

"No developments" was the report of the investigators following their search.

Mysterious automobile parties are being reported to the authorities by persons living in the vicinity of Tabernacle, where the bank messenger's body was found in dense woods a week ago.

Search for men and women from Philadelphia, friends of Paul, who are believed to have taken part in the deserted cabin near Tabernacle, has been without result, according to Prosecutor Wolcott.

"We are without anything real that offers a clue to the crime," he said. "The cabin, an unoccupied shack, is believed to have been the scene of a wild revel, which culminated in the robbery of the messenger and his death. Faint tracks of an automobile around the shack are thought by police to have been made by the 'murder car,' and those tracks are being traced in a direct line across the state toward the Atlantic ocean."

A partly filled whisky bottle on a table in the cabin, and bits of an empty letter, were found by detectives, who believe they were overlooked by members of the party during their hasty abandonment of the place. The bottle, which probably ended with the murder.

The cabin investigated formerly was a clubhouse, known as Peacock Inn, and was being traced in a direct line for many years until October 5, the day Paul was last seen in Camden, and when he disappeared with $40,000 in cash and $30,000 in checks.

OLD MAN PYTHON EATS 33-LB. PORKER AT GULP

Light Lunch at Zoo Follows a Six Months' Fast

"They don't eat very often, but when they do they make pigs of themselves," said Tom Stanley, head keeper of the zoo yesterday, referring to the latest gastronomic achievement of his largest python.

The python, a hunger strike of six months the big snake yesterday swallowed whole, which is the first time in the snake process of eating, a thirty-three pound pig, which had fasted for one hour to consume his meal, said the keeper.

For those who revel in statistics, it might be interesting to note that the largest previous pork-eating achievement was credited to a python who was making way, with a thirty-pound porker. He was just three pounds hungrier than last time, explained Mr. Stanley.

The python has been destroying pigs since October 10, 1913, when he first came to the zoo. While he has not gained noticeably in embonpoint, the python has increased in length by the pork diet. He now boasts twenty-three feet instead of twenty-one when he first came to the zoo.

He also weighs a few pounds more.

CITY HALL HALF DESERTED

Councilman Roper Takes 100 Officials to Princeton Game

A hundred city officials and employees left City Hall at 9 o'clock this morning in automobiles to invade the lair of the Tiger at Princeton University.

Princeton, N. J. Councilman W. Roper, who is coach of the Princeton football team, after a luncheon at Nassau Inn the Philadelphia men will attend the Princeton-Navy game.

City Hall officials presented scenes of unusual early morning activity today in anticipation of the junket. Alarm clocks were set early, so city officials would not miss the "treat." Incidentally, there was plenty of opportunity for harmony talk on the ride to Princeton, as both factions were represented, among those present being Thomas W. Cunningham, president of the Republican Alliance, and Thomas F. Watson, chairman of the Republican city committee.

Deaths of a Day OLIVER DOUD BYRON

Veteran Actor of American Stage Is Dead at Long Beach

Long Beach, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Oliver Doud Byron, seventy-two years old, veteran actor of the American stage, who appeared with Edwin Booth, John Wilkes Booth, Joseph Jefferson, Laura Keane, Mrs. Scott Siddons and other famous stars, died at his home yesterday.

Mr. Byron was born in Frederick, Md. He made his first stage appearance in "Nicholas Nickleby" with the late Joseph Jefferson in 1856. His most notable success was in "Across the Continent," and while starring in this play in 1874 he was responsible for the first stage appearance of Ada Rehan.

Henry B. McCarty, widely known in the metal trade of this city and Pittsburgh, died yesterday at the Drexel Apartments, sixty-third street and Overbrook avenue, Overbrook, after an illness of only three days, of heart disease. He was sixty-nine years old, and is survived by a widow.

Mr. McCarty was for many years a traveling salesman for the Pittsburgh Metal Bed Co., and was prominent in the activities of the National Commercial Travelers' Association. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at an undertaking establishment on Chestnut street near Nineteenth. Interment will be made in Westminister Cemetery.

Philip Mindil (By A. P.) New York, Oct. 23.—(By A. P.)—A newspaperman and dramatic critic, died at his home here last night. At the time of his death Mr. Mindil was in charge of the dramatic news department of the New York Tribune. He was at one time owner and publisher of "Daily Fair."

CHURCH FIFTY YEARS OLD

Two Days' Celebration Begun by Catholic Parishioners

Celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of St. Ann's parish, and the golden jubilee of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Lehigh avenue and Memphis street, began today with a solemn consecration ceremony at which Archbishop Dougherty officiated, at 8 o'clock solemn high mass.

St. Ann's parish is one of the oldest in Philadelphia, the parish itself being founded seventy-five years ago and the present church being erected fifty years ago. The main altar marble, with a large Florentine mosaic centerpiece, was erected at a cost of $25,000.

At this morning's service Archbishop Dougherty was concelebrating the Rev. Joseph F. McCowell, of St. Ann's, deacon, and the Rev. Michael O'Connor, of Nantyglo, Pa., subdeacon. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. Thomas J. McNally, of the Cathedral, assisted by the Rev. Joseph Dougherty, of St. Ann's.

The jubilee will be continued tomorrow with a solemn high mass at which the archbishop will be present. The celebrant will be Monsignor James T. Turner, the Rev. Joseph Dever will act as deacon and the Rev. James J. Gibbons, subdeacon. Dr. Edward J. Curran will deliver the sermon.

The parish now embraces between 9000 and 10,000 Catholics in the north-eastern section of the city, having expanded in seventy-five years from a few score.

The jubilee will close tomorrow evening with a solemn benediction and a sermon by Dr. George T. Montague, of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Overbrook.

TO REOPEN MINE PARLEY

Men's and Operators' Representatives Meet Here Tuesday

James A. Gorman, secretary of the joint conference of anthracite miners and operators, announced in Hazleton today that the first meeting on the proposed reopening of the award of the wage commission will be held in this city Tuesday afternoon.

According to present arrangements, each side is to have four representatives. Those from the miners probably will be the three district presidents and Phillip Murray, of Pittsburgh, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers. The operators will be represented by J. H. Richards, of Pottsville; S. D. Warriner, of this city; C. F. Huber, Wilkes-Barre, and S. H. Hemmerling, Scranton.

At a meeting of the miners' scale committee in Hazleton, Monday, a statement will be drawn up embodying their requests for changes in the recent award.

'A DRINK WITH EVERY SUIT'

Detective Testifies Tailor Had Very Prosperous Business

"A drink with every suit" was the way Detective Millan, of the Eighth and Master streets station, described Morris Kosofsky, a tailor, who was brought before Magistrate McLeary today.

Kosofsky conducts a clothing shop at 1317 Locust street, and according to Millan, it was his custom to give "three fingers" of the invigorating fluid to each purchaser. He also testified that he had never seen Kosofsky with a bottle of liquor in his hand.

Raiding police found two half-gallon jugs of whisky in the store, and the hearing, Kosofsky was held in $400 bail for court on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

ARREST BOYS WITH GEMS

Youths Are Arrested While Trying to Pawn Valuable Jewels

Two Cuban boys who claim to be long to prominent families in Havana were arrested last night when they tried to pawn valuable jewelry in a pawnshop near Ninth and Race streets.

The owner of the pawnshop kept the boys in the store while he called up the Eleventh and Winter streets police station. Patrolman Pagliotti was sent over to make the arrest. The boys, who gave their names as Louis Fresco and Juan Lasso, were trying to pawn a diamond cluster, with a sapphire in the center, set in platinum; a ladies' gold mesh bag, a gold watch and a platinum chain. Pawn tickets from New York city were also found on the boys, who, however, they had come to this country to study.

IS MILDEST OCTOBER

Weather Bureau and Others Make It Unanimous

Those who have been enjoying this month so far may pause to reflect that this has been the warmest and driest October recorded at the Weather Bureau office in service since 1871. Every layman has known that it was dry, and suspected that it was warm, but George W. Minding, first assistant meteorologist, says this is so and it cracks all records since 1871, so that makes it unanimous.

It is cooler today, but the temperature of 64 degrees at noon was still slightly above normal for this time of the year, according to the Weather Bureau.

As if to emphasize the fact, yesterday was the hottest October 22 in forty-nine years, with a high temperature of 80 degrees at noon.

SEEK DEAD SOLDIER'S BROTHER

The home service section of the Red Cross is trying to find James Kelly, of this city, to give him the personal effects of his brother, Thomas J. Kelly, who died in service with Company I, 30th Infantry. The belongings of the soldier are being held by the effects bureau of the government, Governor's Island, New York, for distribution to his nearest kin. As his parents are dead and only one brother is living the latter is entitled to the effects. His address in Philadelphia is unknown.

Girl Knocked Down by Auto

Isabella Foster, 1329 North Twenty-sixth street, was severely injured today when she was knocked down by an auto mobile at Front and Market streets. She was taken to the Jefferson Hospital suffering with two broken ribs and other injuries. A. D. Cades, 301 North Third street, Camden, who was driving the machine, was held in $500 bail for court.

McNeal, Acquitted of Murder, Is Charged With Robberies by Philadelphia Police

Formation of Financial Work Plans to Take in All Social Organizations of City

Escaped Being Lynched

Following his acquittal on the charge of kidnaping and murdering a four-year-old girl in Canada, David McNeal, formerly of this city, is to be brought back to answer burglary and larceny charges.

Local police say McNeal is the last of six bandits and automobile thieves who robbed half a dozen stores in November, 1919. The other five men are serving time.

McNeal narrowly escaped being lynched last August when several thousand indignant citizens of Thorold, Canada, stormed the jail and then set fire to it. They were about to lynch McNeal when his pleas caused them to return him back to the police.

Detective Hodge, of this city, will go to Canada to serve the warrant and have McNeal extradited. Among the robberies in which McNeal is charged are the $15,000 robbery of the National Bank, November 2, 1919, men's store of Max Moscovitz, 2540 Kensington avenue, $800 worth of goods taken; November 9, store of William Baier, 1017 South Quebec avenue, window smashed and $800 worth of goods stolen; November 10, fur stolen from Jacques Ferber, 1316 Walnut street, valued at $1000; November 13, store of Herman Miller, 301 South Sixtieth street, robbed of $775 worth of goods.

The fur shop of Mawson & De Many, Chestnut street, west of Twelfth, was robbed by the bandit gang.

THOUSANDS CROWD ROSE TREE COURSE

Cooler Temperature Makes Scene at Course More Suitable for Autumn

CARD OF RARE EXCELLENCE

Society folk and race followers began gathering by the thousands on the picturesque Rose Tree Hunt course at Media early this afternoon.

The snafu in the air made the setting and the dress of the fall classic more reasonable. The afternoon had that added kick of coolness that was lacking from Champions' Day at the course last Wednesday.

This afternoon's card promises to be one of the best ever offered by a hunt club in this country.

The Rose Tree plate is the feature event of the afternoon, and a field of eighteen horses is entered, probably a record entry for a race of this kind.

Dooley and Riverbreeze, winners at White Marsh and Huntingdon Valley, respectively; Wolvorton and Lakewood, both winners at Rose Tree on Wednesday, and Son-of-a-Gun, owned by Godfrey Preese; Why Not and R. Smith, Jr.'s, Irish Heeler, entered from New York, will make a lot of competition for each other.

Following are the entries: First race, Agricultural Handicap, steeplechase, 2 1/2 miles, over a course in the country—William G. Merion's McCloskey and Sarah J. L. C. Lyon's Roamer and Elizabeth. Second race, The Aspiration Plate, for two-year-olds, about 6 furlongs—James R. Hiddle's Chitwood, 119; R. B. Straub's Perfection, 102; Mrs. Walter J. Barrum, 102; R. H. R. Toland's In the Dark, 102; Huntington Valley Farm's Bandmaster, 105, and Fancy Man, 105.

Third race, The Media Plate, steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward, about 2 miles over the brush course—Antonio Joffard's Algard, 155; Dorris, 155; Rhomb, 155, and King Terry, 148; George Brooke's Sammie, 145; Morris D. Blair's Ruben Hugh, 145; Morgan D. Blair's Ruben Hugh, 145; Jacob D. Ridgway's Love's Legacy, 145; H. Crose Amate's Amate, 145; McNeil's Moses Chaffin; William H. Blythe's Lady Dell, 142.

Fourth race, The President's Cup, for three-year-olds and upward, about 1 mile on the flat—Charles Ledson's Crack of Day, 145; James E. Lister's Pegasus, 150; Stanton D. Riddle's Dream of the Valley, 148; Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Dr. Johnson, 145; George Brooke's Ormond, 145; Samuel D. Riddle's Nohom, 150; Antonio Joffard's Algard, 148; Dorris, 138; Rhomb, 145, and King Terry, 155; George Brooke's John Louisa, 145.

Sixth race, The Rose Tree Plate, hunters' steeplechase, about 2 1/2 miles over a fair hunting country—Jeffrey Breece's Son-of-a-Gun, 150; Antonio Joffard's Algard, 150; Antonio Joffard's Semper Parla, 150; Huntington Valley Farm's Venus, 152; and by the Stars, 150; Morgan D. Blair's Ruben Hugh, 145; Jacob D. Ridgway's Love's Legacy, 145; H. Crose Amate's Amate, 145; McNeil's Moses Chaffin; William H. Blythe's Lady Dell, 142.

Fifth race, The Equity Plate, handicap steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward, about 2 1/2 miles over the brush course—Antonio Joffard's Algard, 145; Dorris, 145; Rhomb, 145, and King Terry, 145; George Brooke's John Louisa, 145.

OFFICER OF MARINES ON MISSING LIST

Mystery Surrounds Disappearance of Lieutenant—Absent for Two Months

EXCELLENT WAR RECORD

Mystery surrounds the two months' absence from the Philadelphia navy yard without leave of Lieutenant Edward W. Franklin, of the United States marine corps.

An investigation has been made by the Navy Department and a disclosure of the facts in the case is to be made soon.

Could play or loss of memory are believed to be responsible for the marine officer's strange disappearance. Fellow officers do not believe he has deserted.

Lieutenant Franklin, who is about forty-eight years old, often was pointed out as one who made the most of the opportunities afforded every member of the marine corps. From the rank of private at the outbreak of the war he was promoted to a temporary captaincy.

Upon his return from overseas he was assigned to the First Regiment, stationed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Although still acting in the capacity of captain over a full company of men, he was reduced to the rank of lieutenant.

About two months ago he was detached from the Philadelphia base and sent to the marine training station at Quantico, Va. While at that station he requested and was granted several days' leave by the Washington authorities.

He was last seen in Washington, and was believed to be going to Baltimore. He has not been heard of since.

His wife lives in Oakland, Calif., and has been in touch with marine corps officials here. She said she is completely in the dark as to her husband's whereabouts and has been awaiting word from him to start East. She planned to join her husband at Quantico, Va., when he was settled there.
